Stefano Salvadori is a statistician and since 2000 a researcher for the Italian National Research Council at the Institute of Clinical Physiology in Pisa. He has carried out research in the field of epidemiology of pathological addictions with regard to methodological aspects and to conduct sample surveys as well as to estimate the total of elusive populations. He has also carried out research in the field of clinical epidemiology on Parkinson's disease, on gastroenterological problems, business intelligence applied to health data, on dynamic monitoring / surveillance systems for health-related events. He has also carried out university teaching activities in both three-year and specialist degree courses, first and second level masters, specialization schools and research doctorate courses with teaching in the fields of statistics, biostatistics and epidemiology.