

Work and Teaching Experience

Post Doctoral Fellowship, Centre Franco-Paix in Conflict Resolution and Peace Missions, University of Quebec in Montreal, September 2016 – March 2018

- Project Title: *Stabilizing Mali: Challenges of Conflict Resolution
- Coordinate the research efforts of a team of eight Political Scientists in the production of a comprehensive conflict analysis of the current crisis in Mali and the Sahel more broadly
- Conduct extensive fieldwork activities in Mali; Burkina Faso; Niger
- Participate in writing grant proposals
- Write analyses for publication in internationally ranked academic journals
- Provide policy advice to Global Affairs Canada

Adjunct Professor, University of Ottawa, School of Political Studies

January – May 2018, Advanced Topics in Critical Security & War Studies, POL 4191

January – May 2016, Political Violence, POL 3162

September – December 2015, Contemporary Geopolitics (taught in French), POL 4526

January – May 2015, Theories and Problems in International Relations (taught in French), POL 4730

September – December 2014, The Politics of Security (taught in French), POL 4524

September – December 2013, Theories and Problems in International Relations, POL 4330

Adjunct Professor, St. Paul University, Faculty of Human Sciences, Conflict Studies

May – June 2016, Political Economy of Conflict, ECS 5116

Research Associate, White Hat Programme, STATT Consulting, April 2013 – January 2014

- Completed interviews and ethnographic reports on social perceptions of criminality and transnational threats in the Sahelian region.
- Conducted qualitative research and analysis for a review of the European Union's Counter-Terrorism in the Sahel Project; research included conducting 60 semi-formal interviews with law enforcement agents, elected officials, counter-terrorism trainers, community leaders, former rebels, government bureaucrats and religious leaders

Research Assistant, University of Ottawa, June 2010 – July 2010/ February 2011 – April 2014

- Conducted extensive research on trends in African security, the securitization of development, and their effects on systems of multi-level governance for Professor Rita Abrahamsen.