The corporate growth, sustainability and business ethics in 21st century are competitive advantage for firms across industry. The contemporary business world is full of surprises to all the stakeholders of any firm. It is in this context that the corporate should practice a governance structure whose essence should be to balance the interests of all its stakeholders. Different model of corporate governance – market oriented and network oriented – are in practice across the globe but its essence has been to mitigate conflict of interests amongst the stakeholders of a firm(s). The corporate governance helps ensures corporate accountability through the mechanisms of processes, customs, policies, laws & institutions, and the likes. Moreover, the demands from the larger society has been that the company should not only aim to be profitable but it needs to demonstrate ethical corporate behaviors, environmental awareness, sound corporate governance, and the likes.

However, the discipline of Corporate Governance is not ‘static’ but ‘organic’ in character. In other words, to be competitive in the fast changing world, the firms need to continuously reinvent their corporate governance structure so that they effectively meet any new opportunities as thrown to them by the post-modern world economy. It is in this context that a need has been felt amongst the academics, practitioners, policy makers, social activists, etc. to revisit the challenges & opportunities confronted by the discipline of corporate governance and business ethics. Hence, this Special Issue (SI) titled “Corporate Growth, Sustainability and Business Ethics in 21" Century” has been conceptualized to capture all the above issues and concerns so as to help the discipline to evolve and adjust to the changing needs and expectations of both internal and external stakeholders of the company.

The SI on “Corporate Growth, Sustainability and Business Ethics in 21st Century” in Journal of Management and Governance will accept research based manuscripts which will undergo standard reviews and revisions of the journal before it being accepted for publication.
